     ii. Thursday May 28th-30th, 2020

   - Section activities:
     i. New This Year: Cluster Themes & Convention Theme ‘Psychology in Action’ – See attachment – agreed that the clinical section subtheme is broad enough, focused on positive aspects of clinical psychology’s role, as well as treating complex problems. There were no concerns with this theme potentially discouraging our members from submitting/presenting/attending.

     ii. Preconvention workshops (1 submission to date) – In order to be accepted topics must be: relevant to clinical psychology, timely, important, well attended, well viewed by members. The clinical section has no obligation of financial support for any preconvention workshop. There are no limits with respect to the number of workshops that we can support. CPA is overseeing submissions/abstract review system and will grant final acceptance. Kristin will forward the submissions to the committee who will discuss and then the committee can decide whether to support the workshop. Any member of the executive who would like to submit a workshop would submit to Kristin, and then that person would not be involved in the supporting decision.

       Actionable item: Kristin to forward submissions to the pre-convention workshops to the rest of the clinical section executive as she receives them

     iii. Reception
• Shared reception with other sections (Counselling, Neuropsychology). Reception was well attended last year and the Clinical Section will try to replicate a joint reception.

• It was proposed that having the Health Psychology and Behavioural Medicine and Psychologists in Hospitals and Health Care Settings sections joining our reception makes sense.

Actionable item: Kristin will contact the 4 sections mentioned above to propose a joint reception. Kristin will also request to have the reception at the end of the day, and immediately following the business meeting.

vi. Student symposium – The discussant for the student symposium will be last year’s SPECA award winner, Dr. Anne Wagner. Focus of the symposium will be trauma. The student representative to moderate the symposium, and she will send out invitations for speakers.

Actionable Items: Jordana to e-mail Dr. Wagner in her role as student representative to inform her of student symposium – and invite suggestions for symposium title and nature of symposium. Once the deadline for poster submissions has been established, Jordana to invite applications for the symposium.
