

ASK A SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGIST

Parent:

I think my child has ADHD. What should I do?

Parent:

My child is lonely at recess. Can you help?

Principal:

At my school, many students cannot read – What can be done?

Student:

I can't learn! Can you help me? Can you show my teachers how to teach me?

Teacher:

How can I help my students deal with a death at our school?

School Psychologists have expertise in various areas of child and youth growth.

Providing unique learning and mental health services to school communities.

Enhancing our Future – Canadian Students

SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGISTS

Providing unique learning and mental health services to school communities.

School Psychologists have expertise in various areas of child and youth growth, including social, emotional and behavioural development, as well as academic achievement and learning engagement. They answer questions about typical progress and individual differences, advising on student challenges and group needs, and recommending next steps. School Psychologists can suggest evidence-based intervention programs, identify reliable resources and/or facilitate referrals to community services. School Psychologists problem-solve with educators, students and families to enhance student success at school and home.

Ask your School Psychologist for a consult!

Enhancing our Future – Canadian Students

cpa.ca/sections/educational