Opportunity for Clinical Psychologists

Breakwater Institute for Occupational Stress and Trauma is located in Cambridge, Ontario, and serves a wide region of southwestern Ontario. Founded and managed by psychologists, its focus is on providing assessment and treatment services for those in high-stress vocations, including current and former first responders, active members of the military, and veterans. As we grow Breakwater Institute we are integrating research, consultation, education, peer support training, group intervention, and synergistic psycho-biological treatment approaches into our activities.

We are looking for autonomous or supervised-practice psychologists who have interest in the treatment of posttraumatic stress and/or work with military or first-responder populations. We would like to develop the capacity to deliver services to children and spouses of our target population as well, so we would welcome hearing from interested clinicians with these skill sets. Those interested are welcome to peruse our website at www.breakwaterinstitute.ca, and to contact Dr. Philip Toman at ptoman@breakwaterinstitute.ca
