Prevention & Early Intervention Program for Psychosis

The Prevention and Early Intervention Program for Psychosis (PEPP) is looking for a psychologist invested in providing evidence-based treatments to join our team!

This position reports to the Manager, Psychology and the Clinical Manager, Adult Mental Health and Addictions Program. PEPP provides rapid assessment and intervention to youth and young adults who are experiencing their first episode of psychosis. In this position, you will work on an interprofessional team comprised of psychiatrists, nurses, social workers, an education counselor, a recreation therapist, and an employment counsellor. The psychologist's responsibilities include: providing individual and group treatment; psychological assessment and diagnosis; consultation; program development and evaluation; and education and training. The position also includes supervision of psychology interns in our accredited internship program. PEPP has an active research program and there are opportunities for adjunct faculty appointments with the Department of Psychology and Department of Psychiatry at Western University.

The PEPP team is well-known in the community for its passion, innovation, and dedication to its clients. The program works closely with clients, family members, and community partners to provide youth-friendly and recovery-oriented services. All clients in the PEPP program will have experienced psychosis; however, the psychologist will work with a wide range of presenting concerns including mood, anxiety, OCD, trauma, and substance abuse. In addition to experience with Cognitive Behavioural Therapy for Psychosis (CBTp), psychologists who are able to integrate and flexibly adapt a variety of empirically supported treatments to meet individual client needs would be very well suited to this position. Supervision and support is available for new graduates who are in the process of registering with the College of Psychologists of Ontario.

Our team is fun, dynamic, and dedicated to the work we do, and eager to welcome a new team member.
