

Assessment Psychologist – Contract

New simplified contract application

WorkSafeBC is expanding its network of independent psychologists who provide objective and comprehensive psychological and neuropsychological assessments. Assessing psychologists play a critical role in helping identify and understand the development of mental health conditions experienced by workers injured on the job, as well as setting the stage for successful treatment and return-to-work. Experience in occupational and rehabilitative health is preferred, but the most important assets are strong clinical skills, the ability to assess validity and weigh information objectively, and the aptitude to outline your findings in plain language. On-boarding support is available. Feedback and informal consultation will be offered to all new providers. This is professionally rewarding work and remuneration is highly competitive.

Who is WorkSafeBC?

WorkSafeBC is an independent agency promoting the prevention of workplace injuries and disease. It also provides fair compensation to injured workers while assisting their rehabilitation and return to work.
