

The Royal Ottawa Health Care Group is currently recruiting for a Psychologist for our Operational Stress Injury Clinic in Kingston

The Royal is innovating, consistent with our strategy of co-creating access, hope, and new possibilities for those we serve. Psychologists within our specialized services plan, develop, deliver, and evaluate the outcomes of high quality, client centered care. The consistent use of progress monitoring and outcome evaluation empowers clients to make informed decisions about their care and promote the attainment of meaningful outcomes. Psychologists play a key role in improving access to appropriate services now through the provision of consultation, training, and dissemination of evidence based practice to other professionals, and for the future through participation in clinical training and supervision of the next generation of Psychologists within our state of the art psychology training program. As part of a leading academic health sciences centre, Psychologists partner with persons with lived experience, research scientists and inter-professional staff to identify new avenues for care.

The OSI Clinic provides specialized mental health assessment and treatment to clients and their families referred by Veterans Affairs Canada (VAC), RCMP, and the Department of National Defense (DND), who are experiencing work-related psychological stress and trauma (e.g. Posttraumatic Stress Disorder; Anxiety disorders; Depression; Chronic Pain, etc.). The services of the OSI Clinic are provided by an interdisciplinary team consisting of psychiatrists, psychologists, nurse clinicians and social workers. As a member of an interdisciplinary team, the psychologist delivers mental health treatment services to clients.
