

F641P- Assistant or Associate Professor of Clinical Psychology

Dalhousie University is Atlantic Canada's leading research-intensive university and a driver of the region's intellectual, social, and economic development. The Department of Psychology & Neuroscience at Dalhousie University invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Clinical Psychology at the Assistant or Associate Professor level. The successful applicant will join a department comprised of a large undergraduate and honours program in addition to experimental, neuroscience, and clinical graduate programs. Dalhousie University's CPA-accredited Clinical Psychology PhD program is based on a scientist-practitioner model and is designed to give our graduates a thorough grounding in the science of psychology and the methods of clinical practice, the integration of research and clinical practice, and the promotion of social justice in research and clinical practice. Students are focused on both research and applied training from the beginning of the program, which continues throughout. Due to our emphasis on the science of psychology, our program produces clinical psychologists who blend the ideals of research and clinical service with diverse backgrounds.

Preference will be given to candidates with a PhD in Clinical Psychology from a CPA- or APA-accredited program, ideally with accredited internship experience. Applicants who have a PhD in Clinical Psychology should also be eligible for registration as a psychologist in Nova Scotia. Applications from qualified applicants with a PhD in other areas of psychology (e.g., Developmental, Social) or a related discipline, and have an applied research focus and interest in supervising the research of clinical psychology students, will also be considered. The successful applicant will have shown a dedication to scholarship, a demonstrated ability or potential to build and maintain a high-quality research program and will be expected to actively participate in undergraduate and graduate teaching and research supervision, as well as service to the PhD program in Clinical Psychology. There are also opportunities for clinical supervision within the Clinical Psychology Program's state of the art training clinic, the Centre for Psychological Health. The successful applicant will also be expected to contribute to Departmental and University service needs.

We welcome applicants with any area of research specialization. We will focus on the excellence of the research and the applicant's fit with the clinical program faculty and within the broader department. Ideally, the successful candidate will complement our existing strengths, while also filling gaps in our research, teaching, and clinical expertise. Current faculty members in the clinical program are conducting research in addictions, pediatric pain, knowledge mobilization, sleep, environmental psychology, severe mental illness, psychosocial interventions, sexual dysfunction, transition to parenthood, and personality and psychopathology, using multiple methods (e.g., ecological momentary assessment, observational, longitudinal, RCTs). Further information about the research activities and courses offered in our department can be found on our website at https://www.dal.ca/faculty/science/psychology_neuroscience.html. Further information about Dalhousie can be found at www.dal.ca.

To apply for the position, please send a cover letter describing how the applicant meets the criteria for the position, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, experience, and interests, a statement of research interests, names and contact information of three referees (confidential letters of reference will be requested, as required) along with a statement describing your experiences and commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and accessibility (EDIA) in science, teaching, service, and clinical practice to the attention of Dr. Shannon Johnson, Director of Clinical Training, clinprog@dal.ca. Review of applications will begin November 1, 2024; applications will be considered until the position is filled. The position will begin July 1, 2025.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Dalhousie University commits to achieving inclusive excellence through continually championing equity, diversity, inclusion, and accessibility. The university encourages applications from Indigenous Peoples of Turtle Island (especially Mi'kmaq), persons of Black/African descent (especially African Nova Scotians), and members of other racialized groups, persons with disabilities, women, persons identifying as members of 2SLGBTQIA+ communities, and all candidates who would contribute to the diversity of our community. In accordance with our Employment Equity Policy, preference will be given in hiring processes to candidates who self-identify as members of one or more of the equity-deserving groups listed above. For more information, including details related to our Employment Equity Policy and Plan and definitions of equity-deserving groups please visit www.dal.ca/hiringfordiversity.
