

DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY TENURE-TRACK ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

The Department of Psychology at the University of New Brunswick - Fredericton (UNB) invites applications for a tenure-track position in Psychology. We are open to area of specialty but are particularly seeking those with expertise in Human Neuroscience or Quantitative Methods. The position is at the rank of Assistant Professor. The anticipated date of commencement is July 1, 2025, or January 1, 2026. This position is subject to budgetary approval.

The salary range and fringe benefits for this position is defined in the Association of University of New Brunswick Teachers (AUNBT) 2022 - 2025 Collective Agreement sections 35 and 36B.

Qualifications of the Successful Candidate

- Ph.D. in Psychology (must be completed at time of appointment) with training and experience in any area of psychology, including human neuroscience (e.g., behavioural neuroscience or neuropsychology), quantitative methods, cognition and perception.
- Demonstrated promise of excellence in research, teaching, and supervision.

Duties of the Successful Candidate

- Teaching undergraduate and graduate courses, including courses in Statistics, Biological Psychology, Human Neuropsychology, Physiological Psychology, Drugs and Behaviour, Survey of the Senses, and in their area of specialization.
- Establishing of a program of research, including supervision of undergraduate and graduate student research.
- Contributing to the collegial atmosphere and operation of the department through active participation in administrative service.

How to Apply

Review of applications will begin March 24, 2025, and will continue until the position is filled. Interested individuals must electronically submit the following via email to the Chair of the Department of Psychology, Dr. Lucia O'Sullivan, at psyc@unb.ca:

- A cover letter describing how they meet the criteria for the position, including statements pertaining to their research interests, experience, and strengths in human neuroscience, as well as expertise in quantitative methods and analysis;
- A statement describing their teaching philosophy, teaching areas/courses of interest, and evidence of teaching effectiveness;
- A current curriculum vitae;
- Applicants should also arrange for three letters of reference to be sent directly to the Department of Psychology at psyc@unb.ca.

General inquiries about the position can be sent to Dr. Lucia O'Sullivan, Chair of Psychology, at psyc@unb.ca

Given scholars have varying career paths and that career interruptions can be part of excellent academic records, candidates are encouraged to provide any relevant information about their experience or career interruptions to allow for a careful and fair assessment of their application.

The Department of Psychology

UNB's Psychology Department in Fredericton is housed within the Faculty of Arts and offers a variety of degree programs, including BA and BSc major and honours degrees in Psychology (with or without a Neuroscience Specialization), BSc major and honours degrees in Biology-Psychology (with or without a Neuroscience Specialization), a certificate program in Applied Behaviour Analysis (ABA), and PhD programs in both Clinical Psychology (CPA accredited) and Psychology (formerly Experimental Psychology). Access is available to research space/infrastructure (e.g., electroencephalography/EEG and eye-tracking equipment), neuropsychological assessment tools, and dedicated (in house) IT services. The Department has cultivated strong relationships with a number of healthcare facilities, including the Centre for Innovation and Research in Aging, located in Fredericton's largest long-term care facility: York Care Centre and the Stan Cassidy Centre for Rehabilitation in Fredericton, the province's tertiary rehabilitation facility for brain trauma. These connections also extend to various research and educational institutions both within Fredericton and across the province, fostering a collaborative environment that enhances opportunities for interdisciplinary research and real-world application.

The University of New Brunswick and City of Fredericton

Established in 1785, UNB is the oldest English-language university in Canada. Offering over 75 undergraduate and graduate programs, we have a diverse campus community while maintaining a small student-to-faculty ratio. UNB is surrounded by natural beauty with large urban green spaces and an extensive network of trails (suitable for biking, running, snow showing, and cross-country skiing). As the capital of New Brunswick, Fredericton has a vibrant array of culture and art, festivals and events, and heritage.

Overlooking the scenic Wolastoq (also called the Saint John River), the University of New Brunswick and Department of Psychology stands on the traditional unceded and unsurrendered territory of Wolastoqiyik (Maliseet). This territory is covered by the Treaties of Peace and Friendship, which the Wolastoqiyik (Maliseet), Mi'kmaq, and Passamaquoddy peoples first signed with the British Crown in 1725. The treaties did not deal with surrender of lands and resources but in fact recognized Wolastoqey (Maliseet), Mi'kmaq, and Passamaquoddy title and established the rules for what was to be an ongoing relationship between nations.

Short-listed candidates will be required to provide satisfactory proof of credentials including appropriately certified translations of credentials into English, as applicable.

The University of New Brunswick is committed to employment equity and fostering diversity within our community and developing an inclusive workplace that reflects the richness of the broader community that we serve. The University welcomes and encourages applications from all qualified individuals who will help us achieve our goals, including women, visible minorities, Aboriginal persons, persons with disabilities, persons of any sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression. Preference will be given to Canadian citizens and permanent residents of Canada